JAMES GALEA MAGIC SHOW

Let's face it; magic is an innately comic line of work. The thing being that most professional illusionists, the David Copperfields of this world, for instance, take their craft way too seriously. One magician who appreciates that comedy and magic can be a complimentary partnership is James Galea, who's bringing his irresistible fusion of gags and sleight of hand I Hate Rabbits to the Enmore Theatre for one night only on Friday 25 April as part of the Cracker Comedy Festival. We have a double pass to give away, but first you have to tell us what magic feat you'd perform if reality were no obstacle?
